

5. THE SOUTH-WEST WINDOW

The glass in the south-west window was commissioned by his sister Dorothy Trafford of Hill Court in memory of Cecil Harold Moffatt of Goodrich Court, who died in 1916 aged 32, from malaria contracted in India. The window was executed in 1928 by A. J. Davies.

In 1790 (right) the window was much shorter with a flat top, possibly with four mullions. This is the earliest detailed depiction of the south windows and may point to their original shape.
