Tower and Spire Fancy Fair.—We are glad to report that each day affords increased evidence of the heartiness with which the inhabitants of Hampton Hill are working for the coming "Fancy Fair." Work, and promises of work come in from all sides, and although to meet our requirements, which are large, we must have a good stock of articles for sale, yet we have good reason to hope that we shall not fail for want of material. At the same time we must not falter, but keep on energetically, each one trying to make the Bazaar a success. One large item in the programme is of course beyond our control, and that is the weather, upon which all out-door fêtes must necessarily in great degree depend. We must hope and trust that the blue skies and glorious sunshine, for which the month of June is famous, may again as in the Jubilee year help forward our work for the Tower and Spire. There is, however, another element necessary to success, and this in very large measure depends ourselves.

We not only require plenty of things to sell, but also plenty of those who will buy. We must all come ourselves and do our best in this department, as well as in the supply of the goods. But if we want to make a good clearance we must bring in our friends from far and near. Let us all give good heed to this matter, and not only come ourselves, but bring a friend or friends from a distance as well. The programme for the Fancy Fair has not yet been fully arranged, but it is intended to have music and various entertainments each afternoon and evening. Once more we invite the cordial assistance of all who can help, and remind our readers that contributions of things for sale will be gratefully received at the Vicarage.

Home Industry Exhibition.—This Exhibition was brought to a successful issue on Wednesday, May 20th. The various productions for competition, as well as a large and valuable loan collection of paintings, curios and relics of antiquity were staged in the Infants' School. The Exhibition was opened at 3 o'clock by Lady Elizabeth Cust, sister of the Vicar, and throughout the afternoon was well filled by those who were not deterred by the higher entrance of 1s. At 5 o'clock the price of admission was reduced to 3d., and by the time for the distribution of prizes by Mrs. Bligh, 6 p.m., there was a large number of people assembled. It would be an invidious task to attempt to fasten the highest merit to any particular one of the many good things entered for competition. We think we may say that all the prizes were well won, and if there could have been more second or third prizes, they would have been well merited. The only fault we have to find is not with those who did compete, but with those who did not. We think there might have been more entries, and we trust that another year many may be encouraged by the success of this Exhibition to try their hand, and win a prize for needlework, knitting, carving, or some other handicraft. The loan exhibition, which was full of interest and instruction, filled up the remainder of the room and overflowed into the class room, which was also used for tea and light refreshments.

Our Schools.—This is the time of year when we are anxious to get in the subscriptions which are kindly given by so many in the parish. We have generally the same tale to tell, that money is urgently needed, and we trust that it will come in well.

Subscriptions received for the year 1890.
