Rector's Reflection

Today we celebrate the feast of Christ the King. We celebrate Christ, risen, ascended and glorified. We celebrate the Kingship of Christ but what sort of Kingship is it? Luke (23:33-43) gives us a vivid picture to reflect on.

A picture not of kingship, power and authority. Instead of fine robes, a naked and scarred body. His crown has no jewels, only vicious thorns. Hands have no rings of power, just the nails which fix him to a wooden cross – no golden throne. No courtiers or servants surround him – just two criminals sharing his fate and a crowd of soldiers and horrid spectators who taunt and mock him.

But before we turn away from this ghastly picture of cruelty and humiliation we see the words “This is the King of the Jews” and we hear the voice of an unlikely believer: “remember me when you come into your kingdom”. Someone here has caught a glimpse of the glory that is hidden by the awfulness of this torture. And we hear another voice, the voice of authority coming from the defeat of the cross, “Today you will be with me in Paradise”.

This King meets our deepest inner needs, the needs we sometimes daren't even face ourselves and which certainly aren't met by the rulers of this world.

This King is prepared to suffer alongside us. He is not apart from us but a part of us, living as we do, dying as we will, but who now lives a new resurrection life. He welcomes us into that same resurrection life in his Kingdom where assuredly we will know the peace and healing we have yearned for.

This King reaches out to us calling us to offer ourselves to Christ the King and may we see what a difference this would make to our lives.
