View from the Manse:

'The Lord, your God, is in your midst, a warrior who gives victory; He will rejoice over you with gladness, He will renew you in his love; He will exult over you with loud singing.' (Zephaniah 3:17)

My View from the manse starts today with more of a view from my car. Yesterday I arrived home but remained in my car as I was listening to the news. I sat with tears rolling down my cheeks for someone I had never known as the police announced the sad death of Jo Cox. Jo Cox, a woman of 41 years, the new and energetic MP for Birstall (West Yorkshire), who leaves behind two young children and a loving husband. The next day Brendon, her now widowed husband made this statement in the press:-

'Jo believed in a better world and she fought for it every day of her life with an energy, and a zest for life that would exhaust most people.'

'She would have wanted two things above all else to happen now, one that our precious children are bathed in love and two, that we all unite to fight against the hatred that killed her. Hate doesn't have a creed, race or religion, it is poisonous.'

The news has filled the airways since its announcement. It has been heart wrenching to hear politicians, not often known to be lost for words, and generally amazingly quick witted and fluent in their rhetoric, clearly struggling to find words to express their shock and sadness at Jo's untimely and horrific death. Even in the Canadian parliament, the politician announcing the news (a personal friend of the Cox family) wept as he spoke of her tragic death, and loss to the world of politics.

And in the recent interviews, discussions are starting to question two areas. Firstly, are politicians used as the scape goats for things that are wrong in this country? MP's work in order to serve their constituents, they may not always get everything right and some, like Jo, may be relatively new to the role so we need to allow them to learn and grow as you do in any job. We have the responsibility of voting them into their roles so we need to support them in what they endeavour to do for the good of the community. Secondly, does the way political rhetoric happens in this country need to become a little less aggressive in style from both MPs and press.

Being an MP is a tough job and I for one would not want that job for all the tea in China. But I am grateful that there are those who want to work in politics and by doing so try to find better, more fair and just ways of running things in this country. But where does Christianity come into all this? Well, some would try to totally separate faith from politics. However, wherever there are groups of people there will be politics. It cannot be avoided.

Maybe what we need to consider as Christians, is seeing beyond the political rhetoric to the hearts of politicians themselves. Not judging them and condemning them as quickly as many seem to. As a Christian, I refer to a higher authority, God through Jesus Christ. 'The Lord, your God, is in your midst, a warrior who gives victory.' Political rhetoric comes to naught if it is not within the will of God. What we can do in the Christian community is pray for our politicians, for their service to the community. We need to pray that more Christians be called into Government, that they be filled with a righteous desire to do good in society, bringing justice to the poor, the weak and the disenfranchised. One thing I did notice in these days after the murder of Jo Cox is just how many of the politicians interviewed spoke of their 'prayers' being with Jo's husband and children... but I wonder how many will be praying for them. Isn't it good to know that in times of crisis it is God that they turn to, even if only in rhetoric? We need to pray that God's love would be shown among them, and God's will be done through them.

Yours in Christ, Kay

Tribute to Harry Bowers

Sheila Munro and the Bowers family thank everyone for their kind thoughts and support following the death of Harry on 16th May. A special "thank you" to Kay and everyone involved in the Thanksgiving Service.

Harry was born in Stockport in 1929 and joined the Royal Air Force at the age of 18, serving for 22 years as a Flight Engineer and working latterly on helicopters at Odiham. His service took him all over the world and included a short spell with the UN.

On leaving the RAF, Harry trained as a teacher and became Head of the Sixth Form at Little Heath School in Reading. His hobbies included sailing, golf and wood-turning. He used his wood-turning skills to make various items for the London Street Christmas Fairs, including a rocking horse which is still in use to-day. He also served the Church as a Trustee for the Pages Bungalows and was involved with printing the Church magazine.

Harry's spirit of adventure and Christian living will long be remembered — a legacy for his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Prayer Focus

Becoming more like Jesus Galatians 5:22-25

We who have been in the church since childhood know, if we are honest, how hard it is to live up to what we believe we should be as Christians. We set ourselves standards of living which we so often fail at. We know we can be forgiven, which is a help but somehow it can be an uphill struggle at times when the love, joy and peace can seem to be missing.

I have come to realise over the last few years that there are other ways to approach life, present, past and future. The following prayer from one of Eddie Askew's books, 'A Silence and a Shouting,' seems to be going in the right direction. I hope it helps.

Lord it's easy setting up rules.

Easy to persuade myself that if only I could live by them you'd be pleased, and I'd be happy.

The trouble is I can't even live by my own rules. It doesn't work.

It's not that my standards are too high. Too stringent.

It's just that I don't have the strength, the consistency. Not on my own.

And no matter how hard I try the love joy and peace and all the rest of it is pretty thin on the ground.

Lord. Help me to realise I'm starting at the wrong end.

When I look at you, Lord I can't quite tell if you any crying at my misery or laughing at my foolishness.

Because there you are offering me the answer.

Free. Yourself. All I have to do is open up my life and let you in.

It's not all that easy, Lord, because when I do it I've got to let everything else go.

But it's good Lord. Because when you take over my world changes.

The rules don't matter anymore. And the life I live is your life.

You living in me. Working in me. Changing me.

Watering the seeds of love, joy, peace, which you brought in and planted.

They grow slowly, in fits and starts. Sometimes the dark turns their leaves yellow and limp, but they do grow.

Surely. Because you are there, working. Not from the outside, but from within.

Gradually building me in your own image.

Thank you:

I'd like to thank everyone for their cards, kind words and prayers following the death of my Mum recently, and especially to Kay for her support to my family. All very much appreciated.
Blessings, Owen.

What a wonderful tea party we had on Saturday, 11th June to celebrate the Queen's 90th Birthday. Thank you to everyone involved in all the preparation — for the delicious food, the decorations in the concourse and the good fellowship; so many folk that there were tables in the precinct. Thank you everyone.

Joan Mussellwhite

I am pleased to report the sum of £1000.89 (£1099.29 last year) was collected during the recent Christian Aid week. Many thanks for your continuing support in terms of your financial contribution and for collection teams.

Blessings

A man whispered 'God, speak to me.'
And a meadowlark sang but the man did not hear.

The man looked around and said 'God, let me see you.'
And a star shone brightly
but the man did not notice.

And the man shouted 'God, show me a miracle!'
And a life was born
but the man did not know.

So, the man cried out in despair
'Touch me God, and let me know that you are here!'
Whereupon God reached down and touched the man but the man brushed the butterfly away and walked on.

MORAL: Don't miss out on a blessing because it isn't packaged the way you expect.
