New Data Protection regulations came into force last month. Please don't stop reading: this isn't about privacy notices (try the benefice website) or consent forms! Over recent years, legislation and policy have tended to expand the region of what is considered "private" and therefore to be protected, in contrast to what is assumed to be "public". A hospital won't tell you or me that someone is an in-patient unless we already know: our health is considered a private matter: not to be shared unless we want it to be – something we have to be sensitive about in public prayer. Christian Aid week collectors mustn't try to collect from houses displaying a "No cold callers" sticker; the same collectors will know of houses which are, perhaps intentionally, difficult to access; have no doorbell or knocker; or where nobody comes to the door even when it looks very much as though someone is in. We cannot assume that people will want to engage with the community where they live – although the time may come when they might welcome its support. Whatever the details of the case, the decisions not to grant Acle Parish Council a compulsory purchase order for extension of the cemetery have upheld the interests of a private landowner against those of a public body.

Technology is turning what were public activities into private ones: a visit to the local shop or bank is becoming an on-line transaction. At the same time, it is having a reverse effect. Through social media, people are sharing personal thoughts and images with a much wider audience than they would have in the past; and leaving an indelible trail which may be accessed in the future – something young people need to be particularly aware of. This isn't necessarily a paradox: the ability to publicise things widely, freely and rapidly has to some extent given rise to the desire to protect privacy.

Our personalities feed into this: extraverts get their energy from being with others; introverts need their own space to recharge. Jesus exercised a very public and demanding ministry. But he also valued time alone with God: withdrawing to lonely places to pray. We know that God knows us intimately, whether we decide to share with others or not. Yet Christianity cannot be a private religion: Jesus didn't just call individuals, but formed a community, and commanded us to love one another. He also promoted giving one's life over, rather than seeking to preserve it. For the baptised, our lives are no longer our own – if they ever were.

In the love of God,

Martin Greenland

St Martin's Trust

At Christmas we supported St. Martin's Housing Trust, Norwich through Acle's Carols on the Green and the Benefice Choir's Procession with Carols at Reedham. Their spring newsletter features Colin, an engineer who was made redundant, then lost his home following substance misuse. Trust outreach workers found him sleeping in Debenham's doorway, beginning his journey with the Trust. He has now secured a full time job as a Design Development Engineer and has been into schools to highlight the dangers of substance misuse. It's impressive to hear individual stories like Colin's; the figures are impressive, too: through its various projects and facilities the Trust is providing care and support to around 200 people at any one time.

Mothers' Union

The Benefice Mothers' Union has been supporting the Vidyal Trust for more than 10 years. Pat Atkinson has just returned from Madurai, South India, having paid 53 visits since the first 28 years ago. It's a much changed India since then, with massive improvements in roads and communications, though Madurai has not changed much except they no longer have street children. Most still live in shacks and an alarming number of children have cancer. The Vidyal Trust helps by getting them pain relief and family support. The Government supplies free treatment but medication has to be paid for. They have one ambulance to cover over a 200 mile radius of the hospital, so the Trust pay for help to reach the hospital - £8 for each needy family. The Leprosy home and the Farm continue to flourish despite many years of serious drought.

Two former Trust children, now staff members, are coming to Brundall this June. They are Muthu Kumar, Kartil and Ranjith. There are events where we can meet them: 11th June at the Virgin Lounge, White Lion Street, Norwich 3pm-5pm; and on Sunday 10th June they will be visiting churches in the Yare Valley Benefice. There will also be a Cream Tea at 2.30pm and a Curry Evening at 6pm at Postwick Village Hall on 22nd June. It would be nice if we could go together to one of these events, possibly the curry night, to meet them. Please contact on 01493 701141 (Jean Cunningham) or 01493 751186 (Tess Trueman).

OVER FIFTIES CLUB AND LOTTERY

Well the lottery was won very quickly this time in only 4 weeks the shortest time ever; it was won by Darren Swan and the jackpot was £189.60. Needless to say he was very surprised and very pleased. We have had another two people join this month, if you feel you want to join and see if you can win a nice jackpot just ring me on 07585504199.

Well this month at the club we have gained another two members, so we go from strength to strength, come and join us for a bit of fun and laughter on a Tuesday afternoon. Next month members are off to Ely Flower Festival, then in August is Holt and Wells, September is Kings Lynn and November is Thursford Christmas Show. We have a party at the Village Hall in December with our grand Christmas raffle and then we have a Christmas lunch at Acle Bridge.

Our hamper this month was themed on St. Georges Day and was won by Jean Medhurst, and given to the club by Carol Sills. Jean was so pleased, she could not believe that her ticket came out and was quite overcome. A lovely buffet was prepared by the Committee assisted by Peggy and Linda made cupcakes. Our quiz continues to cause a laugh and we have this month had a round of Catchphrase; some of the members drawings gave us all a laugh.

You do not have to live in Reedham to join our club - it is open to all villages, and if you are wanting an afternoon with friends do come and join us. You will make new friends and could even meet some you already know. We are so lucky to have a lovely club where nothing is too much trouble for our Committee when it comes to preparing buffets etc. and members that also help. Thank you all so very much. Jane is our coach conductor and looks after members that travel on our coach trips - thank you for that, it is very much appreciated.

That is our news for this month, the lottery game is now started again and each week it runs the jackpot is getting bigger.

Come and join us every Tuesday at the village hall 1.45pm.

Angie Woolsey (Secretary/Treasurer)

It shows some of the people who contributed to our painting of Prince Harry and Meghan Markle. Each section was done by a different person and then they were all put together.

The finished piece was then given to Angela Bishop to initially use with her Dementia friendly Tea and Talk Group.

The sun shone, the villagers rallied and the boaters were tempted off their vessels on Saturday 12th May to support Reedham Messy Church's bake sale. Children from the messy church baked a variety of sweet and savoury treats to be bought with all proceeds going to the church's chosen charity for 2018. Sunshine Educare is a school and healthcare provision for children living on a waste disposal site in South Africa.

The school is funded solely by donations and the children raised an impressive £300 to this fantastic cause.

Thank you to everyone in the village who donated way more than the cost of their purchases, you showed what can be achieved when we all pull together!

Many Thanks

Ann Wall

Reedham Gardening Club

As bedding plants are planted out, and baskets and tubs filled, we must remember to watch for pests. Lily beetles – bright red but evasive – are best picked off. They drop down to the soil with any movement. Aphids will be attacking roses, and slugs and snails do their feeding at night. Wood ash or broken egg shells are a deterrent. Baskets and tubs need watering daily and fed with tomato fertiliser fortnightly.

Vegetables can be planted out if grown in a greenhouse or direct in the soil for a later crop. Quick growing salad leaves, lettuces or radishes, mature in about 3 weeks.
