What makes a village a village, rather than a collection of dwellings? So many former village facilities are now just that: the Old School; the Old Post Office; the Old Chapel; perhaps the old police house, or pub. In many cases the services they used to provide have retreated from the village scene, so that they have to be accessed elsewhere, or on-line (and, for most of you, I admit that includes the village priest!). So what is left? In some cases, just the village hall and the village church.

A recent report on the church buildings of the Diocese of Norwich has told us what we already know: that the long term future of many of our village churches is far from secure. With smaller, increasingly older congregations charged with their care; shrinking resources for their maintenance; and less accessible funding for their repair, local churches are under threat. How would you feel if your village church was turned into a private dwelling (unlikely); or (more likely) gradually fell into disrepair? For most it's no good looking for support from the state: like so many other rural facilities, the key is going to be support and use by local residents – for a wider variety of purposes than is generally currently the case. Our active “Friends” groups at Wickhampton and Limpenhoe are a great source of hope: enabling those who may not wish to worship nevertheless to keep their village church alive.

Over the last 150 years or so, many of the former functions of a parish church (local administration, education, welfare and charitable activities) have been taken over by secular authorities, who certainly do a more professional job; but not always as locally. Looking forward, as I write, to the Janet Church Memorial Event at Freethorpe Village Hall, I was musing that it might be a sort of secular parallel to her funeral; and the village hall the secular equivalent of the village church. Now our village halls are extremely valuable; and the volunteers who run them deserve a medal; but they are, on the whole, functional buildings. Like the other consumer products of our age, when they wear out, you try to get a new one (as Cantley is currently doing). Limpenhoe Village Hall used to be the village school; but most of its equivalents don't speak of any history or continuity much beyond the present generation. You wouldn't visit an empty village hall on holiday; or if you needed some space to reflect; or if you'd suffered some tragedy; or to remember past generations. They don't have the acoustic or architectural qualities of a church as a venue for music or the other arts – or a wedding. And, in contrast to Limpenhoe's Champing™, I doubt there would be many people booking if they were opened up for overnight stays!

Yes, our village churches are designed primarily as places of worship and buildings which speak of Christian faith: naturally, I'd want them to continue as such. But they are also repositories of a community's memories and history. The village church is almost always the oldest building in the settlement, having stood for, say, 900 years; its site is likely to be even more ancient. It belongs, in an important sense, to every resident of the parish – of any faith or none. Much of what it has to offer is intangible and hard to quantify: I would say it represents the soul of the place. It's one of the few remaining assets which still makes a village a village, rather than a collection of dwellings.

In the love of God,

Martin Greenland

Wedding

Ursula Amy Long and Martin Luke Patrick Griffin on 24th August at St Peter and St Paul's, Halvergate

Funeral

We commend to God's keeping:-

James Leonard Tovell, aged 91, on 30th August at St Edmund's, Acle.

Parish Notes

From the start of this term, our primary school in Acle has become Acle St. Edmund Church of England Primary Academy and a member of St. Benet's Multi Academy Trust, a trust established by the Diocese of Norwich to hold a family of (mostly church) schools which have become academies. Although currently their schools are mainly in the south of the county, there is space for further schools in this area to join alongside Acle and Little Plumstead. St. Benet's is not heavily prescriptive where things are going well, so, apart from the rebranding, the character of the school is unlikely to change radically in the short term; but we can hope for interesting new partnerships and sources of support. Unfortunately, the new academic year is beginning without the support of a Christian youth worker, as Zosia Knight has moved on to another job. We thank her for the work she did with the children on her Monday afternoons in school and hope that Norwich-based employer ENYP can replace her soon.

It was tragic to lose Tess (Teresa) Trueman on 31st August from complications following a car accident. A core member of the congregation at Beighton Church, she was known much more widely in the churches and villages from her involvement in organisations like the Mothers' Union, Christian Link and meals on wheels; and her support of her late husband and Reader, Peter. Her funeral will be at Beighton Church on Friday 6th October, 12 noon at Beighton Church (following a crematorium committal). True to her character, Tess requested mourners to wear colourful clothes and remain after the service for refreshments in the church! Our prayers are with her extensive family.

Our Benefice Choir will again have the privilege and joy of singing Evensong in Norwich Cathedral on Sunday 8th October (3.30pm): worshippers from the benefice will be most welcome. We expect the Benefice Choir Carol Service to be on Thursday 21st December.

The monthly service at Swallowtail Place, Acle will be at 10.30am on Tue 17th Oct (in the Games Room) – visitors are welcome; post-service coffee is available from Sista Barista!

Farmer's Market – Reedham Fund Raising Stall

We are hoping to have a small stall at the Farmers' Market on either 11th November or 9th December to raise a bit of money for church repairs (the roof is in desperate need of attention!) If you have anything we could sell, we would be most pleased to hear from you (not jumble as we wouldn't have room or electrical goods). Please contact me, Kati Cowen, 01493 700915 or kncowen@tiscali.co.uk

Women's Night Out on Wednesday October 4th at 7.30pm in Freethorpe Village Hall will feature a talk about 'Norfolk's Indian Princess'.

A big thank you to our loyal helpers who deliver the Outlook magazine to Reedham households every month:

Cate, Mary & Lionel, Shirley, Penny, Amanda, Sue, Sally, Sara, Pat, Claire, Marion, Ann, Kerry, Mike & Jenny, Mandy, Peter, Diana, Wally, Claire, Nigel and Evan. Your help is very much appreciated.

Each person delivers copies to a specific area and it would be good if we could recruit some more people. If you are able to help deliver each month (or willing to be a reserve) please contact me on 01493 700345 or by email. Thank you.

DO SOMETHING SPECIAL?

Acle church sits at the heart of the village and it's a special building with its round/octagonal tower. Acle Parochial Church Council (Acle PCC) is the body that runs it and preserves it, and the church and community life that goes on within it.

Acle PCC needs a Treasurer. It's a voluntary post and would suit somebody who wants to stop their thumbs twiddling after retirement, or just anyone who wants to keep the church going. You don't have to be a member of the church (the retiring Treasurer isn't) – a desire to contribute is all that's needed.

Thanks to Cantley Sugar Factory, The Hippodrome, Pleasure Beach, East of England Coop, Thrigby Hall Wildlife Garden and all who donated prizes for the raffle.

See you all next year.

WICKHAMPTON NEWS

Repairs and renovations at St Andrew's church

At long last, much-needed repairs and renovations have been carried out at Wickhampton church. The most pressing of these was the repair and/or replacement of the aged guttering and downpipes, as water ingress has been a major threat to the fabric of the church and, of course, to the irreplaceable medieval wall paintings.

Grants were obtained from The Benefact Trust, The Garfield Weston Foundation, The Geoffrey Watling Trust and The Norfolk Churches Trust, and donations made by The Friends of Wickhampton Church and by Wickhampton residents. Wickhampton PCC are most grateful to them all, as these funds have allowed the work to be undertaken. The majority of the guttering and downpipes were repaired and repainted, and now look good as new. Numerous roof tiles were replaced and some repointing of the flint walls was carried out. Inside the church, several areas of crumbling plasterwork were raked out, re-plastered with lime plaster and redecorated, quite transforming the look and feel of this special church.

Unfortunately, these works have thrown up the need for even more urgent works to stop the Chancel wall and buttresses parting company, so the fundraising continues!

Diabetes Support Group

I am starting a new Diabetes Support Group in Acle, to meet a need for people with Diabetes to talk to others with the same condition – and to support each other in Living Well with Diabetes.

The first two meetings will be on November 15th and December 13th, both at 7.30 pm in the Church Hall. The Support Group will of course be entirely not-for-profit – and eventually it will be a charity or part of a larger diabetes charity.

I want people to come along and share their own experiences of Living Well with Diabetes. I know that such a group would have assisted me personally, at the beginning of my own diabetes experience.

Reedham Ringers

Summer traditionally sees a flush of weddings and this year has been no exception with the chance for the ringers to ring at Acle, Reedham and Halvergate churches. Wedding ringing is a task that we all enjoy because the addition of church bells on such a special day always enhances the celebration. Do not forget that we are willing to ring for other celebrations - be it a significant birthday, anniversary, to celebrate the birth of a child or whatever. If you would like us to ring for you, then we ask for a contribution to the bell fund and we can arrange a suitable date when you can come and listen or we will record our ringing for you to enjoy.

Six ringers attended the Reedham church picnic in early September and offered other picnickers the chance to chime the bells. We are always on the lookout for new volunteers, so if bell ringing is something that attracts you, do get in touch. There is a Norfolk Junior Ringers group that meets after school at St Peter Mancroft church in Norwich every Wednesday and it is great activity for children and young people who enjoy teamwork, but perhaps are not particularly sporty.

Nomads Theatre Company

We began our read throughs and initial rehearsals in September for our next production of Wind in the Willows. We'll be meeting up to rehearse every Friday night in Cantley or Reedham Village Hall, with our performances scheduled for Friday 26th and Saturday 27th January 2024.

If you'd like to be involved with helping behind the scenes or on the stage, please contact us via Facebook or contact our chairperson Kerri-Anne on 07824468242.

We have also enjoyed extra quiz nights over the summer and our last event on 10th September raised £87.15. Thank you to The Ship for hosting us again and to Julia for being our quizmaster.

Our next quiz is on Sunday 8th October at The Ship in Reedham. It starts at 7:30pm and is £1.50 per person with teams of up to 6 people.

Reedham Belles (Reedham and District WI)

Our birthday party on 5th September was a great success with members and guests entertained by Joan Hocking, a classically trained mezzo soprano. She even had us joining in and our rendition of the WI anthem, Jerusalem, has never sounded like it did that night. It will probably never sound that good again!

Our group has a number of activities planned for the next month – a lunch at Clippesby, a visit to The Bridewell Museum in Norwich, an evening of dog racing at Great Yarmouth and no doubt a local walk or two if the weather continues to be suitable. The October meeting will be held at Reedham Village Hall on 3rd October and is a talk by Angela Bishop - The 1970's travelling museum. New members are always welcome.
