

Churchyard Regulations at St Mary's

Rules and regulations governing the churchyard are made by the Chancellor of the Diocese of Chichester, not by the local clergy and we must abide by the Chancellor's rulings.

The Chancellor publishes a document called Directions [a summary of which is below], with the rules.

Bodies may no longer be buried in the churchyard, but ashes can still be interred: Directions governs the kind of memorial which is allowed to mark an interment.

Usually you would engage the services of a competent Stone Mason (again there are many of these working in our area). A reputable Stone Mason will be familiar with Directions, can advise you in more detail and may attend to the necessary paperwork on your behalf.

Currently the Chancellor favours what is called a Horizontal Ledger stone to mark ashes interment. This is a piece of stone 12 inches square, set flush with the turf (so that a mower may pass over without damage), engraved with details of the person whose ashes are buried there.

There are fees governing the interment of ashes (these change each year on 1 January), and at the moment (2019) this is how they stand:

The fee for interring the cremated remains will be £162 (a cheque may be made payable to "The PCC of East Preston"). If you do decide to pursue the installation of a Horizontal Ledger the Stone Mason will make their own separate charge, and the parish will charge an additional £73.
