

READERWEAR

Readers in the Anglican Church have little to make them recognisable when they are on duty but do not need to be robed. The badge, introduced in 2012, is popular and ideal for formal occasions on a jacket or coat but the range of clothing below gives options which will help identify the Reader as part of the Ministry Team but does not confuse them with an ordained minister. There are options for both formal times and more casual working days with the ability to personalise with a Diocese, parish or even personal name.
