The Editors

New Editors Needed

During 2022 the current editors are planning on leaving the area so we are looking for someone to take over the reins at St Hilda’s News.
Advent came and advent went. Christmas came and Christmas went. An old year has passed, and a new year have just begun. We are still living with the pandemic, and nothing seem to have changed very much or seem to be pointing to a definite end. Still, the year we just left behind has been filled with an endless number of moments. Moments of worry and sorrow, moment of doubt, moments of nothingness but also moments of fullness, moments of joy, moments of surprises, new experiences and hope.

When I was walking home from the midnight mass on Christmas night it reminded me of the first lockdown, back in 2020. I remember how amazed I was, and how weird it felt, with everything closed, empty streets and a silence that you normally only experience on Christmas day. There was a tension in the air, a notion of complete uncertainty. This night, walking home under drizzling rain, it was almost the same sensation. Apart from the fact that there was no lockdown, and we are definitely in another position today then back in the early days of the pandemic. There is still a portion of uncertainty, but I would like to believe that we have started to learn to live with this uncertainty and have found ways to cope with it too.

It was a 40 minutes’ walk from the church to my house and the peacefulness and silence was all that surrounded me. Not a single vehicle on the roads and not a single soul out in the streets. It was literally me and the rain. Almost like the first Christmas: no commerce, no fuss, no panic and no crowds. Just a miracle happening in the quiet somewhere simple and very anonymous. So significant in the middle of its insignificance there and then. Like the life given to each and one of us. A life given by the same infinite love of God that came to live among us all those years ago in Jesus Christ. Each life today, a miracle in the midst of the messiness of the world.

Just after new year I was in the middle of essay writing when the kids of the house came knocking on the door. They had spent the holidays with their nan up in the North. Full of energy, restlessness and with millions of things to share. They nailed me with their big brown eyes and in chorus asked, demandingly: “Helen, have you made your cloud yet? You MUST make your cloud!” I probably looked like a living question mark, because I had absolutely no idea what they were talking about: “The cloud? What cloud? I’m sorry guys but I have no idea what the cloud is.” They looked at me like I was a complete fool and alien and then eagerly explained:
“You draw a big cloud on a piece of paper. Over the cloud you write 2022. In the cloud you write everything you want to do this year. It can be anything. Like fun stuff, things you want to learn, something you wish for, something you hope for or toys you like for your birthday. You know, anything.” They stood there with their arms in the air and with big smiles on their faces.

“And you know, when you have finished your cloud, you put it in an envelope and then... you have to wait ALL the way to next year. And THEN you can open and see what you wrote.” Finishing off with “and then you can make a new cloud”, they trotted off to look for snails at the back of the garden.

The cloud... I like that. We have a tradition of making new year resolutions. Promise ourselves to make changes to make our lives better, more meaningful or make up for things we wished we had done earlier. We are all familiar with this. Beach 2022, better diet, spending less time by the screen, reading a certain number of books, quit sugar, taking up a new hobby, cleaning out the wardrobe... whatever it is. And we are good in starting, full of energy. A new year, a perfect time to start over, to start fresh, this year it’s going to be perfect...

Most of the times we stop somewhere on the way. It was just too much: too much pressure, too ambitious, not enough time... I stopped new year resolutions long ago. It just didn’t make sense to me.

But the cloud does, and I did make a one. I like the idea of writing down things you want and wish and hope for. Whether it is going to happen or not. That’s not the point. It’s more important to have a direction. It’s not a checklist that can stress you for not being able to tick off. You don’t need to tick anything. It’s simply a cloud with thoughts, ideas and dreams.

The cloud is like a prayer. Addressed to God. You can leave your cloud in the hands of God and trust you will be cared for and nurtured even this year. Like every year and every day.

When the next year is coming, and you open the cloud and look at what you wrote and look back on what you actually got. There will be things that most likely will transferred to the next cloud. Or will it? Maybe it will not be as important as you thought. Maybe there will be new things, new hopes, new dreams.

And I’m sure there will be a lot of things that is added which you didn’t count on or expected. But that is not for now. All we need to do now is allowing God to care for us and our clouds.

Until till next time, why not make a cloud?!

Signs and Symbols

This is a simple cross with arms of equal length and the letters for the Greek word meaning "victory" or "conqueror. It can also be spelt NIKE

Nike is used in the Greek New Testament, particularly at Romans 8:37, which says, "We are more than conquerors through Christ Who loved us."
Jesus Christ the Conqueror

The cross with the accompanying Greek letters conveys that Jesus has conquered sin and death. IC are the first and last letters of the Greek word for Jesus; XC are the first and last letters of the Greek word for Christ; and NIKA is the Greek word that means “to conquer.”

Read  John 1: 10-18

John wanted to get the news out about the special parson JESUS. If John lived today how would he get the story out today. And what would that message be?

Read  Matthew 2: 1-12

Wait till it is dark and then go out and look at the stars. If you have a telescope; why not use it.

Then find out how you could travel using stars to show you your way to travel. Why do you think the wise men/kings wanted to travel to meet Jesus? Then think what would you do to get to something special.

Creator of the heavens,
who led the Magi by a star
to worship the Christ-child:
guide and sustain us,
that we may find our journey’s end
in Jesus Christ our Lord.
Amen

Make a simple dove by drawing round your hand. Draw a small black circle on the thumb as an eye, and a yellow triangle attached to the outside of the thumb as a beak. On the dove wings write: ‘You are my child, my beloved.’

Put it on display somewhere in the house as a reminder that all of us are a beloved child of God.

Heavenly Father,
at the Jordan you revealed Jesus as your Son:
may we recognize him as our Lord
and know ourselves to be your beloved children;
through Jesus Christ our Saviour.
Amen
Read  John 2.1-11
you will need: plate, small jug of milk, three different colour food dyes, cotton buds, small bowl of washing-up liquid.
Pour milk onto the plate, then add and one drop of each of the three dye colours.
Look at the milk, noticing how still and unchanged it is, and thank God for the ordinary things in your lives.
Dip a cotton bud into the washing-up liquid. Then dip the tip of the bud into the middle of one of the three colours, and hold it still.
Watch as the colours transform and change the milk.
Take time to think of all the things that have been transformed in your lives by God.

Eternal Lord,
our beginning and our end:
bring us with the whole creation
to your glory, hidden through past ages
and made known
in Jesus Christ our Lord.
Amen
Read  Luke 4.14-21

Act out:
Jesus stood up to read in the Temple.
(stand up)

He unrolled the scroll and started to read.
(mime unrolling a scroll)

He read God’s word. The good news.
(mime reading out loud)

Jesus said he had come to support those in need.
(hold one hand out and then clasp with the other)

And he asked us to do the same.
(hold hands with those either side of you)

Then think how you could support those in need.

God of all mercy,
your Son proclaimed good news to the poor,
release to the captives,
and freedom to the oppressed:
anoint us with your Holy Spirit
and set all your people free
to praise you in Christ our Lord.
Amen

Explore the idea that the words we use are important and can have a huge effect on other people. Lay all the sentences in front of everyone and ask which of the loose words might fit in the blanks. Ask what difference changing the words round has on the meaning of the sentences. See if you can think of any other examples of words that completely change the sentence.

1. You are _____ kind
   ‘quite’, ‘very’, ‘incredibly’, ‘not’

2. God _____ loves you
   ‘kind of’, ‘sometimes’, ‘always’, ‘really’

3. It is important to be _____

4. I find challenges _____

Jesus has the strength and sense to walk away from the challenging voices in today’s passage. Open a conversation about when it might be right to walk away, and when it’s best to say something.

God of heaven,
you send the gospel to the ends of the earth
and your messengers to every nation:
send your Holy Spirit to transform us
by the good news of everlasting life
in Jesus Christ our Lord.
Amen

Gardening from my perspective – January 2022

Happy New Year everyone.
I have been asked to write another article on gardening so here goes...
January, due to both low temperatures and lack of day light, is not one of the busiest times in the garden but nevertheless there are still jobs you can do.

1. Although late it’s not too late to plant tulips in January (preferably by mid-January) and you can often pick up a few bargains in garden centres at this of year. Tulips can either be planted in the ground or in pots. Personally I choose the latter so that I can move the pots around either on the patio or to where there are gaps in the beds to provide colour in early spring.

2. Prune fruit trees by removing any crossing or rubbing branches. Cut back any overlong or straggly branches to a bud to promote vigorous multi-stemmed regrowth. Monty Don recommends that a good guide is to establish a framework of permanent branches spaced widely enough so that a pigeon could fly right through them!

3. Cut back foliage of hellebores before the end of the month to ensure that emerging flowers are not obscured by old leaves and this will also help control leaf spot disease.

4. Clean tools and pots – this is an ideal time of year to clean and sharpen tools and to clean trays/pots so that you are ready to plant in the spring. Use a non-toxic disinfectant such as Citrox or hot soapy water.

5. The three Ds – remove any dead, damaged or diseased stems on trees and shrubs.

6. Start planning for the year ahead, what changes you might want in the garden, which plants you want to replace, or a change in colour scheme, perhaps plants which need less maintenance and of course to bear in mind that, with climate change, to consider planting drought tolerant plants: Lavenders, Ceanothus, Eryngium (sea holly), Cistus (rock rose), Perovskia and Sedum are but a few examples.

7. Finally don’t forget to feed the birds, particularly the smaller ones, as their food sources can be limited at this time of year.

As I mentioned in my previous article when I visit Garden Centres I always look out for ‘Hospital Corner’ the area where you find plants which are discounted because they are slightly damaged or past their best. In my experience most just need a prune and/or to be fed and repotted. For me, one of the joys of gardening is saving such plants and bringing them back to life with a spot of TLC. I find this very rewarding. Finally, as a top tip remember to avoid disappointment in the garden it’s “Right plant, Right place”. What does this mean? Well avoid planting a shade loving planting in the sun and vice versa and avoid planting acid loving plants in alkaline soil and vice versa. If you want to know what type of soil you have in your garden soil testing kits are available from most garden centres.

I hope that’s helpful, the long dark days of winter will soon pass and spring will be upon us before you know it. So have fun and plan your garden for 2022, the year of the Queen’s Platinum Jubilee.

Enjoy your garden.

Alan Sloan
