

Objective	Key Questions	Task
To discuss and reflect on what a dilemma story is. To plan a dilemma story.	Can you think of any books that you have read that have had a dilemma in?	Last week we looked at narrating and dilemma video- The Dragon Slayer. This week the challenge is to write your own dilemma story thinking of all the key features we have been learning about. Today's task is to just plan the story not to start writing! First steps are to think of an original idea for your dilemma story and plan it! What characters might you have?            What is the setting of your story?            What is the build up or journey?            What is the dilemma and choices your main character has to make?            How does your main character resolve the dilemma? Here is an example plan to help you on your way!  <pre>           graph TD             A[Setting] --- B[Characters]             B --&gt; C[Build up]             C --&gt; D[Dilemma]             D --&gt; E[Resolution]             F[Opening and character description] --&gt; C           </pre> The diagram is a flowchart titled 'Story plan!'. It consists of several boxes connected by arrows. At the top left is a box labeled 'Setting:'. Below it is a box labeled 'Characters' with a numbered list (1., 2., 3.). To the right of 'Characters' is a box labeled 'Build up:'. Below 'Build up:' is a box labeled 'Opening and character description:'. An arrow points from 'Opening and character description:' to 'Build up:'. To the right of 'Build up:' is a box labeled 'Dilemma:'. An arrow points from 'Build up:' to 'Dilemma:'. Below 'Dilemma:' is a box labeled 'Resolution:'. An arrow points from 'Dilemma:' to 'Resolution:'. There is also a box labeled 'Story plan!' at the top left of the diagram area.  I have also attached in a separate link, examples of dilemma stories children of the same age in other schools have written.
