

Tying it together

What do you remember about the week before last? It's almost a trick question, because last week was about ways in which we remember important events. The Israelites built a monument so that they would remember, but also so that people would ask questions and more people would find out about God's care.

The Israelites have come on quite a journey, starting as slaves in Egypt with Moses they had seen God at work providing for them in all sorts of ways. Food (Manna) safety (crossing water) guidance (10 commandments, pillar of cloud/fire). Having kept going back to their old ways, they once again have turned back to God and are thankful. He's quieted their enemies and they have food to eat. They are free at last and in the land, God promised

We can see through the different stories that God has been at work, either in the Miraculous or every day activities

What can you do to show you are thankful to those who care for you?
