

Katrina was born into a Christian family in Woking at the tail end of the 1960s, worshipping at Christ Church in the town centre and going to ballet classes in the church hall; dancing remains a key part of her life. She and Andy married at All Saints' Woodham in 1989 and their daughter Cerys lives and works in London.

Her career path has taken her from retail banking, social housing and event management, most recently at Guildford Cathedral (where she was Head of Visitor Experience and Events) as well as work as a dancer and dance teacher. She is a keen choral singer who has been known to sing "the odd solo when pressed" and still regularly goes to dance classes (although her stage shoes have probably been retired...). Her spare time is spent reading, walking, cooking and going to the theatre; she also enjoys wandering around the British Museum, where she is a member.

Having managed to ignore God's call to ministry for a number of years, she eventually listened to what she describes as the small voice in her heart and began training at St Augustine's College of Theology in September 2019; Covid permitting, she will be ordained at Guildford Cathedral in the summer.

Katrina and Andy are very much looking forward to joining the St Peter's family and sharing the knowledge of God's love with the people of Hersham; Katrina says:

"I want to share the Good News of God's love with all, nurture people's confidence in that love, and reassure them of God's presence with us in the here and now."
