Brummie Comedian Joe Lycett guest edited an edition of the Guardian magazine, with a special focus on his home city. A Full double-page feature on the Dads Lane allotment included a mention of a member of our congregation who recently died. Bryan Foster, a current plot holder, said he took inspiration from two people, one of which was "Clive, a member of the Windrush generation who had a plot until he died aged 100 last year". The full article can be read: <https://www.theguardian.com/culture/2024/apr/14/life-on-a-birmingham-allotment-growing-food-vegetables> and we'll pin a copy up in the PENNINE WAY
