MAJOR works to transform St Thomas’ Newcastle into a Resource Church hub for our Diocese are nearing completion.

As reported previously in Link, work began in early 2021 to completely redevelop the iconic landmark, which sits in the heart of the city opposite Haymarket, close to both Newcastle and Northumbria universities.

The environmentally-friendly renovation has been thoughtfully planned with a focus on accessibility, aesthetics and flexibility – and as the finishing touches are applied, the impressive results already speak volumes.

Revd Ben Doolan, Master of St Thomas’, said: “We are absolutely delighted with the renovations of St Thomas’ Church. We cannot wait for the doors to reopen so we can serve the city and community of Newcastle from this fantastic building.

‘As we proclaim the good news of Jesus and serve the city we pray that the St Thomas’ church family will play our part in growing church and bringing hope.‘

St Thomas’ was launched as a Resource Church in 2019 following a successful bid to the national Church as part of the Diocese’s ‘growing church bringing hope’ vision.

Since then - as well as seeing its congregation grow from 15 to around 190 - the church has helped to resource mission and ministry around the Diocese, including planting an Eden Team in Byker to support Mission Initiative Newcastle East (MINE) churches.

The redevelopment of St Thomas’ will help catalyse more resourcing in the future, with flexible space on the ground floor allowing for services and gatherings of up to 400 people.

A youth work space has been created on the ground floor, whereas upstairs the balcony area – once home to tiered pews - has been transformed into a community and learning space, and an open-plan office.

Built in the late 1820s by celebrated architect John Dobson, the building has seen a number of changes over the years including the addition of Victorian pews, tiling and oak panelling.

The stunning new font will be a focal point for new visitors to the church and will be a focal point for new visitors to the church.

Plans for St Thomas’ renovations have been underway since November 2019.

Bishop’s Christmas Appeal raises over £3k

BISHOP Mark has praised the “enthusiastic and compassionate response to our Bishop’s Christmas Appeal which has raised over £3,300 for two charities.

The appeal, launched in early December by Bishop Mark, saw a generous influx of online and cash donations in aid of West End Refuge Service (WERS) and Walking With. Both organisations are dedicated to helping asylum seekers and refugees in North Tyneside, Newcastle and surrounding areas.

The donations - split equally between the two charities - will support WERS, based in Newcastle’s West End, and Walking With, based in Wallsend, in their vital work and ongoing commitment to transform lives and relieve hardship.

Bishop Mark said: “My huge thanks to all who contributed to the Bishop’s Christmas Appeal 2021. Your support has enabled the brilliant ongoing work of WERS and Walking With as they serve some of the most vulnerable and needy people in the North East.

“It has been humbling to see your enthusiastic and compassionate response. Please continue to pray for their staff and volunteers and those they work alongside.”

Melissa Younger, WERS Finance and Operations Manager, offered Link readers this kind message: “We are all extremely grateful for the astonishing amount that was raised by the Bishop’s Christmas Appeal this year in aid of WERS.

“The amount raised went directly to our hardship fund which supports our destitute clients. These people seek sanctuary here in the North East and have no access to any state support and experience great poverty.

“Bishop Mark visited us at WERS before Christmas and met some of the staff, volunteers and clients and even helped to make up some of the Christmas parcels for our clients.

“We are immensely grateful for the ongoing support.”

Walking With – made up of a small staff team and more than 40 volunteers – provides a food bank and clothing bank service. Between July 21 and January 22, the charity issued 775 requests for food and 442 requests for clothing.

Walking With helps refugees and asylum seekers to complete forms and assists in making telephone calls, and sometimes accompanies clients to appointments. It provides English Language support, and social and recreational activities to help them integrate into the local community.

The charity also works with schools and young people to explain about the realities of asylum seeking, with the aim of improving social cohesion in local communities, and to reduce the chances of racial misunderstanding, prejudice, or radicalisation.

Joan Hoult, Chief Executive of Walking With, added: “We are so happy and privileged to receive the Bishop’s Christmas Appeal funds, this will enable us to continue our much-needed work and support for our current clients and new arrivals into North Tyneside.

“Thank you so much for supporting our charity, we appreciate every donation which is sent to us.”

Churches launch new community project with Valentine’s event

As part of a new project based out of Rising Sun Country Park, located in Benton in the heart of North Tyneside, five neighbouring churches are working together to aid and support their community.

The churches involved – St Mark’s Shiremoor, St John’s Killingworth, Church of the Good Shepherd Battle Hill, St John’s Wallsend and Wallsend Salvation Army - form a new project called Rising Sun Neighbours.

Their first event - a Valentine’s Activity Trail – hosted a range of friendly activities such as selfie frames, bird feeders, stone painting and treasure hunts, and welcomed over 200 people.

Revd Dr Rae Caro, Priest-in-charge at St Mark’s Shiremoor said: “We are building friendships between the churches, celebrating the beautiful surroundings of the Rising Sun and looking to find new ways of being good neighbours to our communities.”

Revd Julie Mooney, Vicar at Church of the Good Shepherd, Battle Hill, added:

“This is a fantastic opportunity for outreach to the people who visit the country park, as well as the people living in the new estates in the vicinity.

“It is wonderful that these five churches are working in partnership on this initiative, and by doing so we hope to spread the Good News of Jesus even further.”

Contact information for each of the five churches involved is available here.

Bishop's Letter

With Bishop Mark Wroe

IT’S rarely been easy to be a follower of Jesus, in any generation, and looking out of my window at the winter storms lashing the trees and buildings round about, and listening to the news with its warnings of war, and the latest Coronavirus and cost of living statistics, the world feels pretty bleak.

At the same time, I am convinced of the good news of Jesus Christ who was in the boat with his disciples in the face of the storm and spoke incredible words of peace and hope.

As I consider the storms of our world, real and metaphorical, I remain profoundly challenged about how we can better share the good news of Jesus Christ in the communities we serve. This issue has been at the heart of the Next Steps work we have been doing as a Diocese, and was the backbone of a significant bid we made in the autumn to the national Church for funding to invest in our people, lay and ordained, as we seek to build sustainable momentum around our mission and ministry.

Unfortunately, our bid wasn’t successful, but we still need to take our Next Steps in the direction to which we believe that God is calling us.

Working out how we can move forward is challenging for all of us. We haven’t been in this situation before, and the way forward is not altogether clear. We need to take our Next Steps in faith, rooted in our calling as God’s pilgrim people – called to follow Jesus, even into the wilderness. The Scriptures show the wilderness to be uncomfortable, but it can have much to teach us about who we are, and about who God is. Significantly Jesus spent forty days in the wilderness before he began his ministry, which we echo in our Lenten journey before the celebration of Easter.

Lent is a time when we choose to follow Jesus into the wilderness, prayerfully reflecting on our lives, and challenging ourselves about the things which prevent deeper relationships with others and with God. It is a time to listen for God’s voice, and to test our dreams and plans. Like the storm, the wilderness isn’t a comfortable place to be, but it is an important part of our spiritual journey. Here we can learn to grapple with God about the hard things of our lives, and to open ourselves to God’s healing and transformational love. It’s a place where we find ourselves ’walking off the map’ into the unknown, and the prayers of the Psalmist become our own, ‘Out of the depths I cry to you, O Lord. Lord, hear my voice!’ (Psalm 130).

Jesus shows us that in the midst of the wilderness, or in the storms, there is hope, and is calling us to take our Next Steps, in trust, and with faith. This Lent, may we all know this hope more deeply for ourselves, for our churches, and for our Diocese. Most importantly, may we know this for the communities we serve, and for our world.

Love Grace Bags - church and community in action

By Diane Bayley, member of Holy Saviour’s Tynemouth

ANY will be aware through media reports, of the murder of Grace Milane in New Zealand on 3 December 2018 on the eve of her 22nd birthday.

Grace’s cousin, Elizabeth Lee, is a member of the congregation at Holy Saviour’s Church, Tynemouth, and Grace was one of her bridesmaids when she married in the church in August 2012.

Following the tragic event in New Zealand, Grace’s family have been raising money for the White Ribbon charities here in the UK and New Zealand. The charity educates at a grassroots level and raises awareness of male violence towards women - a cause also strongly supported by the Duchess of Cornwall.

Grace was a lover of nice handbags, and so her family took one step further, working alongside a local women’s refuge to fill handbags to give to women who are fleeing from domestic violence and seeking refuge. An initial target of 50 bags was the aim but this was surpassed because of the generosity and offers of help they received. Further appeals have run in New Zealand, Singapore, USA and Canada and have resulted in well over 11,000 women receiving a ‘Love Grace’ handbag.

Domestic violence towards women, as we are aware, is a huge issue and we hear it being reported time and time again in the news and most recently with the Sarah Everard case. Cases of domestic violence during the lockdown increased massively and therefore so did the pressure on refuges.

At Holy Saviours we set a challenge at the beginning of December to collect good quality handbags and toiletries and then make up bags for local refuges. We felt that there were a lot of unused handbags and toiletries bought as gifts and never used, lurking in cupboards. It was also leading up to Christmas and offers were there in the shops - ‘buy one get one free’ - and unwanted gifts were about to be received. It seemed a good time to launch our appeal.

This was also a double challenge, to work alongside the community and ask people not only to donate but to support the appeal by giving their time and help to pack the bags. The appeal went out via Facebook groups, WhatsApp groups, social and friendship groups and two shops in Tynemouth Village - Fezizwigs and Artichoke - got on board and offered to be drop-off points for donations.

This was to be very much about Church and community coming together and strengthening local links, showing the church in action and most importantly supporting vulnerable people.

We set Sunday 6 February as the date to come together with our friends and neighbours to make up the bags and get them ready for distribution to women’s refuges. The parish hall was set up the night before to ensure easy packing and members of the church volunteered to supply refreshments on the day.

What a response we have had. We had a hall full of bags, toiletries, scarves, perfume, make up and more! The generosity and kindness of others was overwhelming. The hall had a buzz as people excitedly chose things for the bags they were making up.

The church - community relationship was working well and so was the packing. In our first hour we had put together 50 bags.

Each bag was completed with a scarf tied to the handles and a gift tag which simply said ‘Love Grace’ - a copy of Grace’s own handwriting and her floral artwork.

When Elizabeth and I first planned the event, we were reluctant to put a figure on the number of bags we would make up but felt 70 was being optimistic. By 2pm on Sunday we had used all our supplies - and that included a trip to the supermarket for more essential items – we had made up a total of 157 bags!

We had a very busy full-on day - making new friends within our community and strengthening existing links - and we hope to build on this. We hope that we have been able to make a difference in the lives of others by living out our Christian faith. By Monday lunchtime we had already seen 50 bags go to local refuges - such as the demand locally? The making up of bags and collections will continue and a big appeal is being looked at as an annual event in Tynemouth and for Church and community to grow together.

The national Church has released a wealth of resources for this year’s Live Lent theme ‘Embracing Justice’.

In this edition of Link, we explore the resources on offer for Lent and Holy Week and how you can access them.

Printed resources
The Archbishop of Canterbury’s 2022 Lent Book Embracing Justice (SPCK) and daily reflections booklet for adults (CP) have both been written by Isabelle Hamley. Each week follows a different thread through the many stories of justice in the Bible to explore how God works with humanity to bring justice, wholeness and salvation to all.

Study support
There is free online support for groups studying the Archbishop of Canterbury’s book - including in-depth interviews with Dr Selina Stone, Bishop Michael Curry, Ruth Valerio and others exploring different aspects of justice.

A Church Read is also offering free downloadable discussion questions and short video introductions for each week from Isabelle Hamley.

Online and digital
Digital daily reflections: #LiveLent: Embracing Justice will offer a daily Bible reading, a short reflection and a prayer, as well as a practical challenge linked to the week’s theme via a free app for Apple and Android devices, free e-mailed reflections, and audio on the Church of England’s Smart speaker skills. The reflections run from Ash Wednesday, 2 March to Easter Day, 17 April.

Social media: daily reflections throughout Lent, and online national services exploring the themes of the daily reflections.

A Church Near You churches also can add services using Lent and Easter tags; Resource Hub features free customisable graphics, videos, hymns and images; and downloadable posters.

Church Army Lent resource pack

The Church Army Lent Resource has been designed to give you and your church space and time each day throughout Lent to listen to God and reflect on the Bible.

Each pack contains 40 cards divided into Action Cards, Character Cards, Reflection Cards and Marks of Mission Cards.

Available as both free email reflections and a physical pack of cards, you can learn more about the resource here.

WaterAid Lent Appeal

WATERAID is inviting churches to join its annual Jars of Change Lent Appeal.

By giving something up for Lent and donating the money saved to WaterAid, churches can help bring clean water to communities around the world.

WaterAid has created a free resource pack that is available to order by post or to download, including fundraising ideas and Sunday School activities.

For more information and to order or download the free resources, please click here.

Children in the Shadows

The Clewer Initiative has launched its new Lent 2022 resource ‘Children in the Shadows’, shining a light on the thousands of unseen children trapped in slavery in the UK and beyond.

Each week of Lent will focus on a different way in which modern slavery impacts children and includes definitions, statistics and insight from frontline experts.

Throughout the course, participants will work through Luke 18, discussing how Jesus’ interactions and parables can inspire our lives.

Each session closes with a prayer to draw people’s reflections together and the words of two new hymns, written for The Clewer Initiative by Sheenah Khan and Simon Hancock.

You can view the materials here, and are encouraged to share amongst your church and in your community.
The Oswin Project at Newcastle Cathedral

By Revd Fiona Sample,
CEO of the Oswin Project

A debate in the House of Commons on 20 July 1910 Winston Churchill said: “The mood and temper of the public in regard to the treatment of crime and criminals is one of the most unfauling tests of the civilization of any country.”

Currently, England is failing that test. We hold the unenviable record of having more individuals in prison than any other country in Europe and numbers are increasing - despite a slight drop due to the pandemic. Building new prisons is not the answer. Giving training and employment opportunities is.

The Oswin Project was founded, as our strap line indicates, to give second chances to those who have been in prison.

We are always asked about our name. Oswin was the lesser-known half-brother of King Oswald of Northumbria. If the Venerable Bede’s writings are to be believed, Oswin ‘loved justice above all things and spoke to prince and pauper in the same manner’.

The Oswin Project is slightly different from other organisations because our care is holistic. We build a bridge of opportunity between prison and outside, and are happy to get involved in almost anything that gives our clients, who we call Oswinners, second chances - as long as it’s legal!

To start an Oswinners journey we run a bakery and café in HMP Northumberland. The goods baked there supply Café 16 in Newcastle Cathedral and ‘graduates’ from prison have the opportunity of a placement there.

We also have our flourishing ‘Inside and Out’ team, which decorates and maintains gardens/landscapes. Mentoring and supporting our Oswinners and employees alike is key to our success.

Legacies

GENEROSITY can exist in many ways, at many times, throughout our lives. From sharing love and God’s word at baptisms, to cakes and raffle prizes at church fayres, generosity of spirit is a lifelong gift to our communities and parishes. What our churches are today is the result of the love and generosity of those who came before those worshipping today.

For most of us our churches are a huge part of our lives. We have friends we meet each week for worship, we pray about them during the week, we fundraise together, we sing together and we worship together.

We hold some of our most important moments – baptisms, weddings, and funerals - in these buildings. Our church family has been there for us at the lowest times of the happiest. We build things in our churches, not just structures and services but community, love and kindness.

It can also continue after we are no longer here. Legacy giving is a wonderful way to leave a lasting gift. Many people leave a gift to a charity in their will – as a thank you for the work they do or to help them continue that work. Gifts to our churches do the same thing, enabling churches to have the resources to continue their mission and ministry.

From allowing worship through music via gifts towards organ repair or books - to celebrating the wonderful gift of creation with flower display stands, legacies help continue the mission of the church for generations to come.

Do you have any stories of gifts or projects created through legacies - maybe a prayer garden, church repairs, trainings, children’s projects, or hymn books? We’d love to hear your story. Please get in touch with Leanne at l.conwaywilcox@newcastle.anglican.org.

We’re planning some training and drop in sessions in May to help churches in the Diocese talk about legacy giving – so watch this space.

What is a ‘Radical Welcome’ and how is this different from any other sort of welcome?

In the gospels we read that Jesus sends out his disciples in pairs to proclaim the Good News, directing them to stay where they were welcomed and show how Jesus is quite clear that they should not waste time where their presence is not wanted: “If anyone does not welcome you or listen to you there, that place that you and shake the dust from your feet.”

Since the completion of the redevelopment work, made possible by support from the National Lottery Heritage Fund, Newcastle Cathedral has been considering the question, how do we welcome all our visitors, so they stay to be blessed by us as well as to be a blessing to us?

The cathedral is hugely grateful to its volunteer welcomers who are committed to embodying its core values of ‘Radical Welcome’, ‘Inspiring Worship’ and ‘Innovator of Change’. They provide a visible presence, greeting everyone as they enter the building through its main West Entrance. Volunteer training looks at how we manage the tension between ‘Radical Welcome’ and ‘All Feel Safe’. This includes unconscious bias; rescuing behaviour and the drama triangle; personal safety and boundaries; trauma informed environments and responding to conflict and pastoral needs.

In centuries gone by, a fire was lit at night in the cathedral’s lantern spire as a beacon to aid boats to navigate their way safely home up the River Tyne in the dark. Drawing upon this analogy, the cathedral’s Lantern Initiative seeks to be a beacon of light to those visitors navigating difficult circumstances in life, such as those who are homeless or have refugee status, those living with addiction and poor mental health and those who are lonely or grieving.

‘Radical Welcome’ cannot only be a passive response, it must be proactive and an attempt to meet people where they are. If we are serious about offering hospitality for everyone, we will need to actively seek out and walk alongside those individuals and groups that have previously been alienated by the Church and wider society.

Through the work of the Lantern Initiative, the cathedral has been working with a group of women who have been through the criminal justice system. As a result of their past, their collective experiences have been impacted by being judged by others, by being denied access to certain opportunities and they carry a deep-rooted sense of not belonging. The trauma and abuse these women have been exposed to throughout their lives unsurprisingly means they value ‘feeling safe’ and are highly attuned to their environment. Their sense of the cathedral as a place of sanctuary where they are affirmed simply for who they are has resulted in two exciting projects which the women are leading on.

We were delighted when one of the women recently expressed a desire to become a cathedral volunteer welcomer. Our safeguarding policies relating to volunteer recruitment necessitates checks and risk assessments that require disclosing some information about the individual’s past. This was painful to put down on paper by the individual concerned and had the effect of triggering painful feelings and emotions for them, despite our best efforts to do this ‘sensitively’. Reflecting on this afterwards has resulted in the individual offering to help us to re-design what we do, and how we do it, and better enables us to work in ways that are trauma informed. This way of working is messy and disruptive but when we work with (as opposed to for) people, something new is co-created that both parties are involved and are drawn in, and everyone learns and is changed as a result.

‘Radical Welcome’ inevitably involves disruption and change but unless we are willing to embrace this, people will shake the dust from their feet and search for hospitality elsewhere.
Alpaca fundraising at CofE school

STUDENTS and staff at All Saints Church of England First School, Morpeth welcomed a trio of alpacas this February.

As part of their nursery classes fundraising efforts for Hilltop Farm Animal Sanctuary, families were asked to send in donations in return for a pet and a walk with the alpacas.

Nicholas Reeson, Headteacher at All Saints said: ‘Our school’s ‘Faith in Action’ group encouraged each class to support a chosen charity/good cause.

“This is a nice activity to help the Indigo (nursery) class with its fundraising for the sanctuary and it’s an example of our ‘together we flourish’ vision.”

Living in Love and Faith

Have you taken a look at the Living in Love and Faith resources or completed the course yet? If not, there’s still time to learn more and share your views.

LLF is a suite of resources created by the Church of England exploring identity, sexuality, relationships and marriage. They are designed to encourage churches to take part in a process of learning and praying together.

After completing the five-session course or looking at the resources, people are invited to share their learning, insights and experience through this questionnaire, or by responding creatively as an individual or as a group.

The deadline for feedback is 30 April 2022 and will play a major part in influencing the House of Bishops’ process of discernment and decision-making in relation to matters of identity, sexuality, relationships and marriage.

Our diocesan-appointed LLF Advocate, Izzy McDonald-Booth is on hand to offer guidance and support to churches around LLF, particularly in helping parishes to facilitate courses.

In this edition of Link, we asked Ce Pacitti to share her experience of facilitating a LLF course at Gosforth Parish Church of St Nicholas and reflect on the outcomes.

Why did your parish decide to run a LLF course?

We were interested to explore the material, to find out what the church had produced to help with the discussion of important issues, and to ‘do our bit’ to feed back. We were keen to have an opportunity (which was structured and supported) to think and pray together about how we as a church community treat each other and how wider society might think about what church teachings represent.

How were you supported in facilitating the course?

As facilitator, I was supported by several others - my incumbent, two other members of the congregation, and I also knew that if I had any questions I could go to Izzy McDonald-Booth as the diocesan LLF advocate. The course materials and guide for facilitators were all very clear and helpful – the structure of the sessions was well organised with enough material simple to follow the videos if that works for your setting.

Our group took these as a starting point and were keen to spend most of the time together in discussion.

How did you set up the group and run the course?

We ran the course on Zoom – partly because of Covid restrictions at the time and partly because having already run a Pilgrim course and a Lent course in this way we had already set the boundaries and expectations that Zoom was a safe space to talk about important issues.

Most, but not all, of the LLF group had been involved in one or both of these previous Zoom groups. We met on five consecutive Saturday mornings, there were around a dozen participants in our group ranging in age from 16 to 70-plus with a range of experiences to bring. The group found this a safe and respectful arena to voice their opinions and worries - the pastoral principles included in the course materials were a useful reminder each week to help focus the way we interacted with each other. We used break-out rooms to split into smaller groups and the participants found this a useful way to listen to each other and perhaps to voice things they might not have felt comfortable saying to the bigger group.

Did you use the LLF resources to help group discussion? How accessible are the resources?

The LLF resources were a useful and accessible way to help with our group discussions. As we found our way through the course, following the theme of each session, we found that the materials provided an excellent starting point for the group to consider different issues but that we found it most valuable to spend our time together mostly in discussion. All participants were sent access to the online materials to look at them, if they wished, in their own time.

As a group, we found the most helpful and moving material in the ‘story’ films - these made the material about ‘real people’ rather than abstract concepts. As a group we all agreed that hearing people’s stories allowed us to engage more fully – they prompted group members to share their own stories too.

How has taking part in LLF impacted you?

The LLF course opened my eyes to love in its purest form, and the role the church has to play in embracing people for the unique individual they truly are. It was a rich sharing experience, which emphasised learning and forward thinking.

“I thoroughly enjoyed my Saturday mornings when we were following the LLF course. [The] facilitator gave just the right amount of support and encouragement so it was comfortable to talk. The breakfast rooms were good as it was great to talk to like-minded people in smaller groups, exploring very important issues. It also made us think what we could do as a church and how to move forward to ensure we continue to be an inclusive church.”

“Was this an opportunity for us to discuss difficult topics in a safe environment? I am so pleased to have been able to talk to people in break-out rooms in a very personal way. It was a delight to talk to open-minded, forward-thinking and intelligent people.”

“Only good can come of this.”

For more information about LLF, click here or visit the diocesan website for local information. If anyone would like to take part in diocese-san facilitation training in March and April, please get in touch with Izzy.
‘It is a huge privilege to share in so many children’s lives’

Founder of charity helping Palestine’s destitute children reflects on his God-given mission

When Malcolm Jones was 23 years old and training for ministry, he spent some time in Jerusalem.

Little did he know those short few months in 1965 would stay with him forever, and lead to a lifetime of service and care for some of the ‘most forgotten and needy’ children in the world.

Now aged 80, Malcolm has been the guiding light of Practical Compassion for Destitute Children (PCDC) for the past 27 years.

Offering care and support to disadvantaged and impoverished youngsters in Palestine, PCDC has given thousands of children a helping hand when they have had nowhere else to turn.

“Children tell us we are the only charity they can approach directly when they are in distress,” said Malcolm, who set up PCDC 30 years after his first visit to Jerusalem.

The charity now supports 172 children who, because of conflict, occupation and poverty, have been unable to attend school.

With the belief that good education can rescue children from the spiral of poverty and destitution, PCDC - working in 25 Palestinian schools - pays the children’s educational fees.

The charity also gives access to doctors, dentists, physiotherapists, nurses and provides food, clothes and shoes for the young people, many of whom are orphans.

Malcolm, in his role as Children’s Coordinator, made sure each child’s needs are met and worked closely with the children, their families, teachers and others to set up support networks for the stricken youngsters.

“We can take sick Palestinian children into Israel for treatment where often the parents are not permitted to do it. We take them and bring them safely back to their parents,” said Malcolm.

“Over the years, we have provided a prosthetic leg for one which had to be amputated, contacted doctors, dentists and surgeons throughout the country to get their help and services for children.”

As a Christian and ordained priest, this far-reaching work is central to Malcolm’s faith and his deep calling to help these children has been guided by the hand of God.

“I felt that He was asking me to lay each child’s needs before Him and that He would provide the means to find a way,” Malcolm recalled about his early days of starting up the charity.

From a young age, Malcolm has had an unwavering desire to help children - before ordination, he taught at an ‘Approved School’ for boys who were no longer in mainstream education, and at the age of 21 became Britain’s youngest House Father in the employment of the Home Office, supporting 35 “very disturbed teenagers”.

Even throughout his ministry training in Lincoln, Malcolm volunteered his time to work with disadvantaged children in schools.

So when he was warned against speaking to the streetboys of Jerusalem on his first trip there in 1965, Malcolm’s compassion and natural instinct to safeguard troubled youngsters led him to ignore this advice.

“I went out and got to know them, and gradually gained their trust,” he said.

“They took me to their lairs and homes, if they had homes. They were all refugees, bitter about what had happened to them, bypassed and ignored by pilgrims.”

“I soon learned to love them and spent a lot of time with them. I never forgot them. One of them, Ibrahim Abu Rakheb, now aged 79, is still my friend and I talk with him and visit him often.”

He always had the intention of returning to Jerusalem to help these young people who became his friends “but life took its different turnings” for Malcolm, who, after marrying Jennie in 1969, went on to live in Venezuela for a period as an oilfield chaplain before his ministry brought him back to the UK as a parish priest in 1975.

But Jerusalem was never far from Malcolm’s thoughts. Thirty years after he first set foot in the sacred city, Malcolm returned to act as a tour guide for pilgrims and ended up fundraising for an orphanage.

“Soon I realised that God was calling me to some kind of ministry, to support children not in a single institution, but an area,” Malcolm recalled.

In the months and years that followed, Malcolm and a small team set up PCDC as a faith ministry, meaning they cannot appeal for money or donations on their own behalf. All donations can only be used for the children and any administrative costs must come from Gift Aid.

Incredibly - with the support of a loyal army of supporters and sponsors PCDC has flourished since its inception in the 1990s.

“In one recent year we spent about £160,000 but the same amount came in. God has never broken His promise and we trust Him day by day,” Malcolm added. “I am deeply grateful to all who help us.”

As the charity continues its essential work in the Middle East, Malcolm is slowly stepping back from the day-to-day administration of PCDC and passing on the baton to the active board of trustees, who are planning to appoint a new chair soon.

A post-pandemic visit to the West Bank is already being planned, so that the vital personal contact with PCDC and their schools and families can resume.

Malcolm will remain as a trustee, offering his guidance and knowledge to the new team who are dedicated to continuing the crucial work of the charity.

Reflecting on the achievements of the charity, Malcolm said: “It is a huge privilege to share in so many children’s lives, and to be known, trusted and loved whenever we are in Bethlehem. The Bible uses the phrase Talieth Kumi - ‘Little girl, I say to you, get up’.

“We reach boys and girls when they are down, restore their vision, heal their hurts, comfort them, love them, and pray for and with them. We work in refugee camps, schools, homes and orphanages. It is an enormous privilege, and the work is spreading.”

If you would like to find out more about PCDC, or offer your help, visit its Facebook page or contact Canon Richard Hill (collis.rick@gmail.com or ring 0191 284 1108). You can also sign up to the charity’s monthly e-newsletter by emailing jonathan@pcdcuk.com.

PCDC came to the aid of Mahmoud Rabah when he was 11, paying his school fees. The charity then trained Mahmoud to become a nurse, specialising in babies and children. He is now the charity’s ambassador.

Building a brighter future

Welcome to Ottermead Bellway

DUKE’S Secondary School in South East Northumberland has announced an exciting new partnership with UK housebuilding giant, Bellway. The partnership will see a range of opportunities become available to pupils throughout the school, including employer masterclasses, careers guidance and field visits.

As well as supporting Duke’s Secondary School to deliver the National Career Ready programme, it also forms part of a regional pilot project for Bellway to help introduce young people to the wide variety of career opportunities available in the construction sector, including apprenticeships.

To celebrate the official launch of the project, a cohort of Year 12 students from Duke’s Secondary School (part of NCEA Trust), took part in a Career Ready Masterclass on ‘preparation for work experience’. Students were encouraged to think about what skills they already have, what skills employers might look for in job candidates and how they can make themselves a model employee.

Danielle Towers, Head of Sixth Form and Careers Lead at Duke’s Secondary School (part of NCEA Trust), said: “We are honoured to be working alongside Bellway at the cutting edge of its new school outreach programme.

“At Duke’s, and across all of the schools within the wider NCEA Trust, we are committed to providing pupils with high-quality careers education covering a wide variety of industry sectors to help them make informed decisions about their futures.”

Laura Bell, Group HR and OD Manager at Bellway, added: “By showcasing the range of roles available at Bellway and offering opportunities where people can earn while they learn, we hope to open up the possibility of a career in construction to those who may not have previously considered working in the industry.”

St Mary’s receives bronze Eco award!

By Marion Oakes, Parish Environment Champion at St Mary’s Monkseaton

Taking care of God’s Creation is an integral part of Christian life and environmental issues are an established part of ministry and mission.

At St Mary’s we are aiming to reduce our environmental impact and become net zero carbon by 2030. At the end of 2019, we joined the Eco Church programme.

In 2015 we completed a redevelopment programme, which addressed several major issues. Works included a new heating system, LED lighting and water saving toilets, which have since been part of the twinning programme. Wood from removed oak choir stalls was repurposed into a new alter, lectern and various areas of panelling and shutters.

Several groups and individuals continue to work towards our eco goals. We have completed an eco-survey, implemented an Environmental Policy, completed an energy audit and moved to green energy suppliers. We have started to reduce paper, chemicals and plastic usage and widely encourage the use of Fairtrade and eco-friendly products in church.

In November 2021 we achieved our bronze Eco Church award. As we go forward, we are focusing on some of the eco-survey and the energy audit suggestions. We have a grounds redevelopment project planned which will incorporate several eco-friendly ideas, and we intend to make the outside space at St Mary’s as much of a community asset as the inside.

To encourage individual involvement in all things eco, a ‘Pledge and Prayer tree’ is available in church. Anyone can write a personal commitment that will help reduce their carbon footprint and can offer much needed prayers, for those affected by the present climate emergency.

Synod approves rules to help churches meet carbon-reduction target

Churches and parishes across the Diocese will be able to make major improvements to help reach carbon reduction targets.

The Church of England’s General Synod has approved new legislation, in an attempt to make eco-friendly changes more efficient.

Changes to the faculty jurisdiction rules – the Church’s equivalent of planning law – were voted through, allowing churches to make adaptions easier.

These adaptions include fitting new fossil fuel boilers, electric car charging points and insulating pipes.

The rules come as part of a wide-ranging approach to meet the 2030 net-zero carbon target set by General Synod in February 2020.

In July 2022, the Synod will meet again to discuss a full proposed plan to achieve net zero, which is currently out for consultation.

The Dean of Arches, Morag Ellis GQ said the changes represented a “positive and proportionate” part of the Church’s response to the climate emergency, allowing parishes to make informed decisions for their churches.

The Bishop of Norwich, The Right Revd Graham Usher spoke to the Synod as the Church of England’s lead Bishop for Environmental Affairs. He said: “The life of the local parish church is the hope for the world. Each is a crucial place for where the living out of our faith happens.”

“The new rules offer encouragement to parishes to rise to the challenge of sustainable living, by de-regulating a range of actions, some small, some bigger, all of which can help us move in the right direction.”

The rules were approved by an overwhelming majority, and will be laid before Parliament and come into effect on 1 July 2022.

Net Zero Carbon webinars

The Church of England’s Environment Programme has launched its spring webinar programme.

All the details can be found in its February newsletter (to subscribe and receive it monthly, go here). Subjects include environmental fundraising, eco church, embodied carbon, net zero schools, and an introduction to the Great Big Green Week.

The net zero carbon webinar page includes all the past recordings, including church heating, solar panels, EV car charging, LED lighting, conservation pitfalls, navigating the faculty system, and more.
By Donna Brown, Safeguarding Operation Officer

As a Safeguarding team we are constantly striving to offer the support which is needed by the parishes to ensure that everyone in your parish remains safe. A large part of this is ensuring everyone is correctly trained, ensuring everyone has up to date Safeguarding Parish Dashboards and dealing with queries from parishes.

We endeavour to work closely with the parishes, offering a number of sessions for PSSOs to attend that can be found here. We meet monthly with Archdeacons to discuss any safeguarding updates or issues in their Archdeaconries, we meet with Area Deans to raise any issues and listen to their issues.

This year, we have also chosen to introduce churchwarden safeguarding meetings. We are aware that there is often a lot of demand on churchwardens and, especially when a church is in interregnum, the level of responsibility is high.

In October 2017, the House of Bishops published Key Roles and Responsibilities of Church Office Holders and Bodies Practice Guidance. In relation to safeguarding, the churchwardens work with the incumbent, PCC and Parish Safeguarding Officer to:

- Ensure that in the period of a vacancy (during an interregnum), that the incumbent’s safeguarding roles and responsibilities are fulfilled, in consultation with the PCC, Parish Safeguarding Officer and the Area Dean.
- Pay attention to the specific needs of children and vulnerable adults when undertaking health and safety inspections and risk assessment.
- Ensure that risk assessments are carried out before new activities are undertaken;
- Ensure that all parish activities with children and vulnerable adults are adequately supervised and insured.
- Ensure that the parish has procedures for responding to complaints and grievances.
- Answer questions regarding safeguarding as they arise in the Archdeacon’s visitations, and respond to any specific safeguarding advice, which may be given from the Archdeacon.

In order to offer as much support as possible, we are holding a number of lunchtime meetings over the next year, some via zoom and some in person in various locations. If you come in person we will even provide you with a light lunch. If you are coming to a zoom call feel free to bring your lunch to the call.

These meeting are for you to bring your issues and ideas to us and will cover the following questions:

- What is going well that you want to celebrate that others can learn from?
- What are the challenges or obstacles you are facing?
- What support do you need from the diocesan safeguarding team?

They are designed to be an informal chat, but we will note all points raised and let you know what action we will take or are taking. You are welcome to attend one meeting or all of the meetings, depending on the needs of your parish. These meetings will work best if we get a lot of people to come along, so it would be great if you could try and go to at least one.

A full listing of meetings is available here.

If you would like any advice regarding this, or any other safeguarding queries, please contact me at d.brown@newcastle.anglican.org.

I can also assist with booking these sessions should you need it.

Northumberland church school welcomes new sensory suite

Northumberland church school welcomes new sensory suite - which can be used as a safe space to calm down or as a reward - features a blackout tent and blinds, soft play equipment and sensory lighting to help pupils self-regulate and relax.

Staff at the school sought capital for the project after seeing the success of a sensory ‘safe space’, being used by older pupils with special education needs and disabilities (SEND).

Part-funded by the school itself, an additional £500 was sourced from Northumberland Church of England Academy Trust’s Endowment Fund to complete the project.

Amy Thompson, Headteacher at William Leech C of E Primary School, said: “The new sensory suite has proved a huge success so far. We have already seen increased engagement with activities within the suite and in the main classroom following time spent in the sensory room. “Over time, we hope to see a decrease in the amount of dysregulated behaviours in school altogether.”

Every gift. Every action. Every prayer. Every one of us can change lives.

By Helen Cunningham, Church Engagement & Fundraising Officer (North East & Cumbria)

Our planet is changing, but some people are feeling the effects of these changes more than others. Weather extremes are now more frequent and more intense, and the world is facing a climate crisis.

For the first time in a generation, global poverty is rising. Coronavirus, conflict and the climate crisis are pushing more of our global neighbours into a struggle for survival.

In rural Zimbabwe, seven out of ten women rely on farming to earn a living and provide for their families. But the climate crisis has brought intense droughts that have left their land barren.

In times of drought, many families can only afford to eat one bowl of porridge a day.

“One year, we had no rain. The scorching sun burnt my crops just as they were about to bloom. It was so painful and disheartening,” said Jessica, one of the many women at the mercy of the climate crisis.

“My children crave a good meal, but I can’t provide. We often go to bed on an empty stomach. It pains me to send them to bed hungry.”

Another woman who has faced the worst of the climate crisis is Janet, a grandmother from Zimbabwe.

“One year, there was so little food. Rains had not fallen. We ate things which we wouldn’t eat in normal times. I made porridge and things which we wouldn’t eat in normal times. I made porridge and put it down to the dogs. The children picked up the dogs’ share because they weren’t full. When I saw this, I knew the situation had become unbearable,” Janet shared.

With faith, hope and love for her family, Janet brought her family through this painful time with the support of Christian Aid’s BRACT programme (Building Resilience through Absorptive and Adaptive Capacities for Transformation). This programme helps the most at-risk communities in Zimbabwe to stand strong and resilient to the climate crisis. But there is still more to do.

This Christian Aid Week, you can be one of the hundreds of thousands of our supporters who give, act and pray – stepping out in love for our global neighbours.

From envelope collections to walking 300,000 steps in May, Christian Aid Week brings people together as one community helping those living in poverty to transform their own lives.

This Christian Aid Week (15-21 May), please:

- Give generously to help women grow crops that survive in the drought.
- Act and raise your voice for justice. Join our Loss and Damage campaign.
- Pray that families will stay strong during tough times of drought.

Find out more about Christian Aid Week here.

Jessica Mwedzi, is hungry to provide food – and hope – for her family.

PUPILS at a church school in Ashington have taken part in a cutting-edge training course to become ‘Mini Medics’.

Students from St Thomas Bewick C of E Primary School thoroughly enjoyed the half-day course, where they learned basic first aid skills, including how to assess a person’s medical needs and how to raise the alarm in case of an emergency.

They also learned practical first aid, tending to cuts, grazes and sprains, as well as more advanced emergency care techniques.

Jessica Williamson, Headteacher at Thomas Bewick C of E Primary School, said: “We are incredibly proud of all of the children who took part in the Mini Medics course. The sense of pride they had in themselves following the session was fantastic to see.”

Year 6 pupil Aston Jo said: “We had to try and clear the airway of the dummy we were using by hitting it on the back. We were then shown the Heimlich Maneouvre and the object came out of his mouth.”

Tony Mordue, First Aid Trainer at Simonside Outdoor Adventure, added: “It was a pleasure to work with the staff and pupils at Thomas Bewick C of E Primary School on the Mini Medics course.”

To find out more about the school, click here or for more information about Mini Medics, visit its page.
