

BE GLITTER FREE

The glitter we use on Christmas cards and wrapping paper is made up of tiny pieces of plastic, called microplastics, coated in coloured shiny metal which cannot be recycled.

When we wash or throw away glitter, the microplastics can pollute our natural environment and even enter the food chain. By choosing to stop using glitter we can all prevent damage to the environment.

What will you do to keep your
Christmas glitter free?

BE THE CHANGE