Bunting

The children created their own fabric bunting. They had such amazing creative designs!

We came together as school to celebrate the Queen's Platinum Jubilee. The whole school split into four groups, of mixed ages, and had fun trying the four different activities we'd planned for them. It was brilliant to see the older and younger children interacting and engaging together while celebrating this momentous time in British history.

Crowns and Flags

The children decorated their own crowns to wear to tomorrow's street party. They also made Union Jack flags ready to wave.

Dancing Through the Decades

We went back to the 1950s and moved through to 'current' times through the medium of dance. We tried: The Bunny Hop, the Hand Jive, Tiger Feet, YMCA, Oops Upside Your Head, the Macarena, The Cha Cha Slide and Waka Waka. The children also enjoyed showing their very modern dance moves: The Floss and Gangnam Style!

The Queen's Secret Portrait

Each child painted a small portrait of the Queen using either warm or cold colours. Some children had to do a combination of the two. Once all 100 small portraits are placed together a secret image, in the cool colours, will appear. There is huge interest in what this will be!

Decorating Biscuits

Our youngest children, Tigers, decorated over 100 crown biscuits ready for our Street Party.

Sandwiches

Lions Class, worked hard to make cheese and also jam sandwiches for the Street Party.

The Queen's 'Favourite' Biscuit

We've heard rumours that the Queen is rather partial to tiffin. So Jaguars set about making some for the rest of the school to enjoy.

The Street Party

The highlight of the day was the whole school coming together for our 'Street Party'. Pupils from Jaguars Class helped to set up the tables and games ready for the afternoon. The party began with some traditional games, including large dominoes, noughts and crosses, snakes and ladders and even pin the tail on the corgi! Our playground was decorated with the fantastic bunting that the children had made the day before, there was a lot of fun spent trying to find their bunting. After the games, everyone sat down together to enjoy the food that they had made: sandwiches, crown biscuits, tiffin and strawberry and banana smoothie. We finished the party with some dancing to the songs we'd learnt the day before. We even 'bunny hopped' our way back into school.
